Winter charity walkies

MUDDY: Hundreds walked 5km for St Clare Hospice

PUPPY LOVE: Proud owners with their cuddly canines

A record 350 dog owners promenaded with canines

Report: William Mata
Pictures: Pawsome Portraits

HUNDREDS of dog owners paraded their furry friends in a fundraiser for St Clare Hospice.

A record 350 walkers and 100 dogs took part in the 5km Winter Walkies on Sunday (February 26) across Essex countryside to raise expected funds of more than £5,000.

At the head of the pack was Poppy, who had been named winner of the hospice's cutest canine competition, held in the lead up to the event.

The walk started from the hospice centre in Hastingwood and continued into surrounding fields.

Dani De'ath, event organiser, said: "This was the eleventh year that we have organised Winter

POOCH PARADE: Owners take their favourite animals for winter walkies raising cash for St Clare Hospice Walkies and it gets more and more popular every year, this time attracting a record number of dogs and their owners.

"It really was a sight to see so many happy wagging tails held aloft as all the dogs set off out the hospice's gate.

Atmosphere

"It was wonderful to hear such positive comments from those who took part saying what a lovely atmosphere there was among their fellow dog lovers."

St Clare Hospice provides specialist palliative and end of life care to those with terminal and life limiting illnesses.

Events such as Winter Walkies help towards the £4million it costs the charity to continue operating every year.

Miss De'ath added: "It was a privilege to organise such a lovely event and to see so many people from our local community joining forces to help raise money and awareness for their local hospice.

"We would like to thank everyone who came along or supported the event, helping us raise much-needed funds so we can provide our skilled and compassionate care to every local family who needs us and we look forward to setting the bar even higher for next year."

Warning as fundraiser targeted in phone scam

A POPULAR Harlow fundraiser was targeted by scammers pretending to be phoning from Sky.

Terry Card, 80, of Lutton Bush, pictured right, is warning residents after a convincing sounding caller asked him read out his bank card number last week.

The pensioner, who is well known for fundraising with his pet Chihuahuas outside Harlow supermarkets at Christmas time, said he recognised the attempted fraud just in time.

Mr Card said: "I had a phone call from someone who said they were from Sky Protection. They said they were giving me a special offer and it seemed it was all plausible."

The caller was posing as a staff member of Sky Protect, an insurance service which protects branded devices against faults, breakdowns or accidental damage.

Address

Mr Card continued: "They knew my address and they asked me for the first four numbers on my bank card and then they asked for the rest of the numbers on the bank card. To this I said no.

"It did not seem right. I rang Sky Protection and they knew nothing about it. It seems like a scam."

Essex Police has reissued a warning to residents about the threat of scam calls which can often be convincing and deceptive.

A spokesman from the force said: "Bogus callers are creative and their reasons for needing entry into your home can seem plausible, but be cautious.

"Over the telephone callers may pretend to be police officers or bank officials, who tell victims that thieves have had access to their bank accounts.

"They then ask victims to withdraw large amounts of cash and send it to them in a taxi so that they can check the notes for fingerprints."

LEO HARTLEY: Former personal trainer cries as he is sentenced to two years

Paedophile was told to 'get the * away from me' after groping penis of a 13-year-old victim

By Conor Gogarty
conor.gogarty@essexlive.news

A HARLOW paedophile sobbed as he was sentenced to two years in jail for sexually assaulting under-age boys.

Leo Hartley, 35, of Rivermill, was sentenced to two years in prison after pleading guilty to two counts of sexual assault on a child and three counts of possessing indecent images of children at Chelmsford Crown Court on Tuesday, February 28.

Judge Christopher Morgan said he was "troubled" by the fact that the member of controversial anti-terrorism group Harlow

Strong had only now been brought to justice after being first arrested on March 9, 2015.

The former retail worker and personal trainer touched the penises of two 14-year-old boys, the first on December 10, 2014.

He sexually assaulted the second boy the following February.

Pictures

Leo, who lost his job following his arrest, was also sentenced for possessing 386 pictures and 18 videos showing child abuse, including one which involved the oral rape of a girl aged four to five.

The most serious classification for indecent images, category A, applied to 106 images and one video; 185 images and 17 videos fell into category B; and 95 images were judged to be in category C.

Leo's civil partner Paul Hartley left mother-of-eight wife Jardine in 2006 for the paedophile.

But the trio came to an arrangement a year later that saw Leo help raise her children and act as a father to her two youngest.

Prosecutor Matthew Sorrell-Cameron revealed Leo met his first victim at a bus stop when he was 13, before the boy started visiting his home to play Xbox games.

"It is clear he knew the boy was under 16. He said as much in the police interview," Mr Sorrell-Cameron said.

"While at the house, the boy went to the kitchen to get a drink. Leo showed him a video of a girl walking a dog on Facebook, which he found funny."

Watching

"As the boy was watching it, Leo moved his left hand to grope his penis. He held it for a few seconds."

"He said to him: 'Have you ever tried it?' The boy pushed his hand away and said: 'Get the * away from me.'"

The prosecutor added that the child left the house shortly afterwards, before Jardine confronted Paul about what had happened.

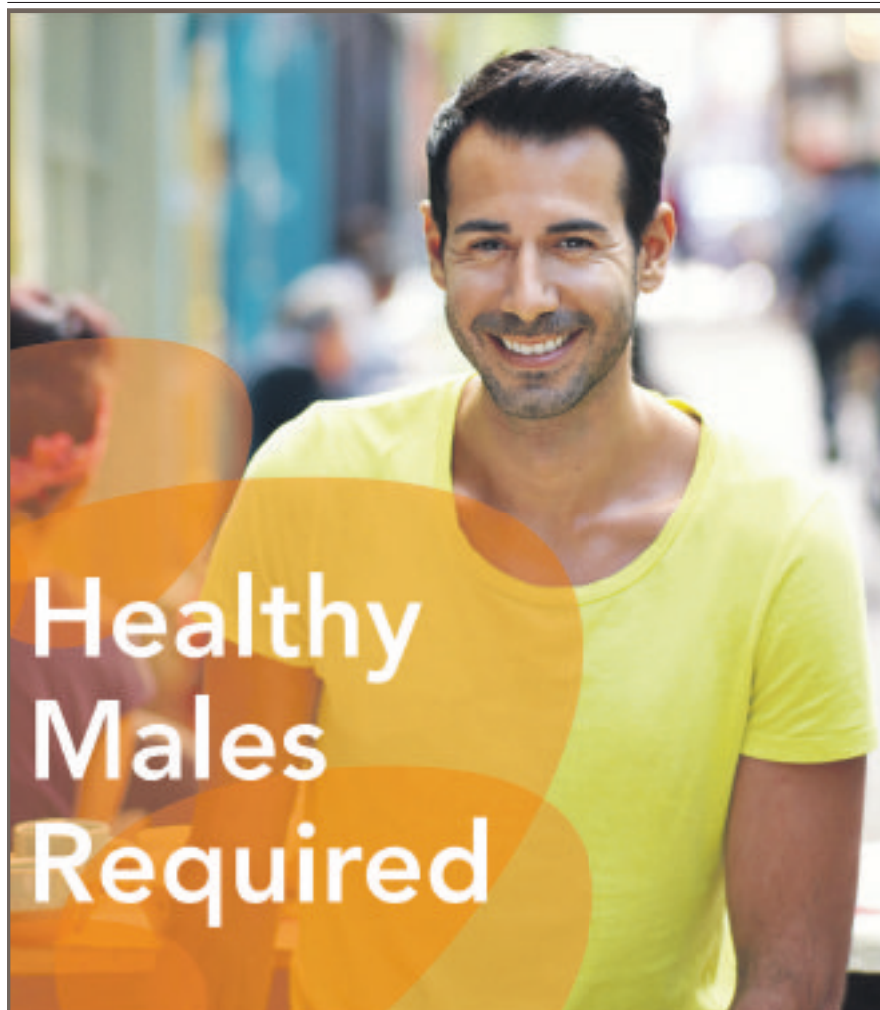

Paul's response was: "I knew something like this would happen. I know what Leo is like."

Mr Sorrell-Cameron said this made the boy worried about going back to the house.

He added that the second sexual assault came during 'playfighting' between Leo and another 14-year-old visiting Jardine's home.

"At the time he knew he was 14. He engaged in some playfighting and the boy had to run off to the bathroom because it later transpired he had an erection."

"After a break, they continued playfighting. Leo said everyone was playfighting, but it seemed in jail after pleading guilty to sexually assaulting a number of underage children

Defendant is described as a man in denial

PASSING sentence, Judge Morgan branded the defendant "a man in denial".

He said: "When you were arrested you could have made admissions, but you denied any offence."

"You still seek to explain and justify. You pleaded guilty not because you fully accepted your guilt, but, you said, in order to spare your victims coming to court."

"It was an abuse of trust. The boys were entitled to feel safe in those homes. It is an accepted way of grooming a child."

"You have a sexual interest in children. I have no doubt you intended to touch him to see what his reaction was. Your attempt to seek help was rather late in the day."

Incident

Judge Morgan added that the incident from Hartley's youth could not mitigate his offending.

As well as a two-year prison sentence, Hartley will be subject to a sexual harm prevention order for ten years.

This means he will be barred from unsupervised contact with children and required to notify the authorities of any devices with internet access, and changes in address or passport.

his was focused on the boy. "He squeezed or grabbed and then pushed his genitalia. This took place over clothes."

"The boy thought nothing of it at the time and only later realised the significance of what had happened."

Later that day Leo sent a series of Facebook messages to his victim, including one that said: "You got a bit of a big dick ain't ya LOL."

The child said to police that he was shocked by the messages, which he found "disgusting".

He told Paul about them, but he laughed and urged the boy not to mention them to anyone else.

Mr Sorrell-Cameron said the boy felt "pressured and antagonised" by the family to stop him speaking out, while he has struggled at school since the attack.

To explain the length of time between arrest and sentencing, the prosecutor added: "All I can say is the image inquiries and a linked inquiry about another victim took a lot of time."

Paul, now separated from Leo, attended the sentencing, which the paedophile was ten minutes late for.

The court received a character reference for Leo from Jardine, as well as a letter of apology from the defendant himself — but a psychological report judged him to have "limited remorse".

Accepts

Ms Parveen said: "He accepts he may have touched them but he didn't intend to."

"He says the images were sent to him and he deleted them," added Ms Parveen.

"The report says he is not posing a significant risk by way of dangerousness. He has asked expressly to apologise to the victims and the remorse is there."

"He said it was difficult for him to speak about his background and childhood. An incident from when he was 17 or 18 has been reported to the police."

"He is now being sensible on Facebook and in the company of young children. He is a hard-working man."

Calling for a suspended sentence, she pleaded for Judge Morgan to "give him a chance".

"Jardine speaks highly of the defendant," Ms Parveen said. "She was surprised, because she has seen the other side of him, which is warm and kind."

"She believes this was out of character. "He has made efforts to get treatment. He really does need help."

When approached by the Harlow Star, Jardine declined to comment and told our reporter he was a "poor excuse for a human being".

'The overnight transformation in my son after assault was just unbelievable'

By Conor Gogarty
star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A HARLOW mother has revealed her child "changed overnight" after being sexually assaulted.

At Chelmsford Crown Court last week Leo Hartley, 35, of Rivermill, was sentenced to two years in prison after pleading guilty to two counts of sexual assault on a child and three counts of possessing indecent images of children.

Following the sentencing, the child's mother described his transformation after the sexual assault as "unbelievable".

She said: "He turned from a model student who loved school into a little sod overnight. He was bunking off and just being a little git."

"I knew something was going on but we couldn't get out of him what it was."

"Then I heard about another allegation against Leo. He denied it to me, but I thought there was no smoke without fire."

"At that point I was fearful. I told my son to stop going round there."

The boy did not tell his family about the attack until June 2015.

"As was said in court, he had been getting pressure from Leo's family not to talk," his mother said. "He had been threatened."

"It felt awful. I went down the right route by reporting it to police. I didn't want to do it, because he was my baby boy."

"Leo blocked my boy on Facebook, but he had taken screenshots of the messages, which we gave to police."

The woman also spoke of the family's pain after Hartley initially denied the charges.

The court heard that her child had told Leo's then civil partner Paul Hartley what had happened, but he laughed and urged the boy not to mention it to anyone else.

His mother said: "I had never spoken to Leo much. He was never very approachable."

"I would see him and Paul in town after I found out, and it stopped me sleeping and eating. My son was over the moon when Leo pleaded guilty."

"On the way to the sentencing, I was waiting at the bus stop for 20 minutes with Paul and Leo, and then on the bus."

"It wasn't nice. I had a horrible feeling if I spoke to them it would have mucked up the day, which was about getting justice."

She added that she was relieved by the sentence, though she is not happy at its length.

"If you get two years, you should serve two years, not one," she said. "All we can do is go forward."

"This is just the beginning. My son has needed counselling, but he is starting to get back to normal."

Binmen's special treat for youngster with a lorry love

Danny sits in truck and receives Veolia kit

By Charlotte Page

THE dreams of a five-year-old boy have come true with a little help from the Veolia binmen.

Danny Fisk, who waits for the bin lorry to arrive every week at his Harlow home, was surprised on Thursday, February 16, by the crew who allowed him to take a look at the vehicle inside and out as well as have the chance to sit alongside the driver.

Knowing his passion for lorries, the Veolia team were contacted by Danny's mother, Charlie Fisk.

She said: "He had a lovely time looking around the lorry and meeting the crew, and was very excited."

Appreciate

"We really appreciate that the time was taken by the council, Veolia and its employees to create such a special memory for a child."

"He was given his own Veolia T-shirt and hat like all the other Veolia staff and got to sit in the dustcart alongside the driver."

Regional director of Veolia, Keith McGurk added: "Our team are also very keen on waste collection vehicles, so we can understand Danny's interest and excitement."

"We were delighted to surprise him with the chance to sit in the driver's cab and look in the back to see where the bins are emptied in one of the lorries he loves so much."

STORM DORIS: Huge clean-up operation after trees are felled, a roof is blown

Residents still picking up pieces after gusts leave a trail of utter destruction

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

STORM Doris left a trail of destruction in Harlow last Thursday, scattering everything from fences to garden ornaments.

Council contractor HTS Property and Environment had its work cut out as several trees blew over, including one near Princess Alexandra Hospital, which led to buses being diverted.

The firm cleared fallen trees in Upper Park, Rye Hill Road, London Road and Old Road.

It also attended incidents at Manor Road, Roydon Road and Kingsdon Lane.

Blocking

A large fallen tree was also photographed completely blocking a footpath on First Avenue near Burnt Mill Academy.

The storm has now cleared but some residents were still coming to terms with damage this week.

Father-of-one David Hawkins spent the night in temporary accommodation after the roof of his flat in Little Brays, Harlow, was taken off in the wind.

The 33-year-old said: "It has been rather frightening. My roof is wood and plaster.

"If it was to rain the whole thing would fall in."

Harlow resident Ashley Page posted a picture on Twitter of his back garden fence having

GIANT OBSTACLE: Trees block a pathway in First Avenue, Harlow

been blown away by the storm. Meanwhile Jane Thomas, who lives in Rundells, Harlow, voiced mock outrage at Storm Doris on social media after her garden were knocked over in the severe weather.

'It was so lucky that massive tree did not fall onto houses'

A HUGE 40ft tree uprooted by Storm Doris snapped in three places and nearly landed on nearby houses in Harlow.

The tree, just off Park Lane, landed just ten feet away from houses on the road and exposed snapped roots going as deep down as two metres into the ground.

Passer-by Maureen Croxson-Hicks, 64, was driving her disability scooter during a shopping trip in Harlow at about 11am on Friday when she was amazed to see the giant tree on the floor.

Cracked

She said: "I was on the other side of the road and then I just saw this huge tree cracked on the ground and I thought 'oh blimey'.

"I went over to check it out and it was so lucky that it did not fall onto houses. This was a massive tree and would have easily wiped out one or two houses if it had fallen just a little differently.

SHATTERED: The 40ft tree that was uprooted by Storm Doris

"I kept thinking how could this have happened but nobody else seemed to even notice the tree, which I did find strange."

The great-grandmother added that she saw council workers cutting off branches earlier in the day and taking them away in lorries.

Workers were also clearing the cycle path nearby and clearing debris from the fall.

Mrs Croxson-Hicks, of Halling Hill in Harlow, speculated that the strong winds from Storm Doris blew through a gap in the houses and blasted the tree with extra force.

"I have seen quite a few things fall over because of Doris," she said. "But this was by far the worst, it must have been a colossal force I cannot even tell what type of tree it was now."

NARROW ESCAPE: The tree landed just 10ft from homes

PC tends to

A HARLOW PC helped care for an elderly woman knocked down during Storm Doris on a chaotic day.

The 87-year-old broke her pelvis after being blown over in strong winds in the town's Tawneys Road at about 1.30pm but the stretched ambulance service was unable to attend immediately.

With help from the public, PC Josh Haase created a wind shelter for the woman by moving her next to a bus stop and parking his police car next to it. He waited with her and made arrangements with her family until an ambulance arrived.

PC Haase said: "It was quite busy. Power cables were down, off and garden ornaments scattered on day of chaos

Roads grind to a halt after lorries overturn

STORM Doris caused gridlock in Bishop's Stortford as lorries and trees fell victim to high winds.

Wind speeds reached 70mph by last Thursday afternoon, causing a lorry to overturn on the M11 at Junction 8 (Bishop's Stortford).

The motorway had to be closed to vehicles heading north, with traffic being diverted along the A120 towards the A10, causing heavy delays during the evening rush hour.

Delays continued until 9pm as work was carried out to recover the lorry.

Another lorry overturned on the M11 southbound between Junctions 10 (A505 Duxford) and 11 (A11 Saffron Walden), closing one lane.

A fallen tree was the cause of queues of traffic in Spellbrook on Cambridge Road (A1184).

It was brought down on the northbound section of the road near the junction with Spellbrook Lane East.

In Sawbridgeworth, the storm claimed another tree in the churchyard at Great St Mary's.

The 200-year-old horse chestnut tree came down shortly after 2pm, narrowly missing a war memorial and gas main as it came down.

Parochial church councillor Peter Clarke said: "It's an old tree that generations of children have conkered and it was quite fortunate it happened just before the children came home from school along that path."

"It's probably a couple of hundred years old, it's absolutely enormous."

Escaped

The tree fell across two footpaths, but missed the church building itself and vehicles in the car park also escaped damage.

Mr Clarke said: "It missed the war memorial by a few feet and missed the church and a gas main by a few feet."

"It fell in the right direction but I think it's come as quite a shock to all the local people from the number of people who have been stopping and looking at it."

Within an hour tree surgeons The Whitelaw Brothers had started on clearing the routes through the churchyard.

trees were on the road and an older lady got knocked down in the wind.

"The ambulance service were so stretched. It was an hour and a half before they could get to her because of all of the chaos."

"We could see it was getting worse and worse. It was quite difficult for us. There was not a lot we could do (medically) and we were restricted to where we could take her away."

He added: "I have not come across wind like this in Harlow. The most extreme was last year when it was so hot. It was quite gusty to say the least."

Chaotic

"It was so chaotic. Lorries overturned and that caused havoc for people as that meant the motorway was blocked for some time. There were also traffic lights down in some places. Our patch went much further than normal. We ended up in Sawbridgeworth. It pushed us all."

MISERY ON THE TRACKS: How commuters were affected

COMMUTERS faced travel misery last Thursday as Storm Doris wreaked havoc on the trains.

Huge crowds formed at railway stations across the capital, including Liverpool Street and King's Cross, as services were cancelled and disrupted during rush hour as a result of the high winds.

Greater Anglia told customers not to even try travelling on its trains between London, Stansted and Cambridge in a tweet sent out at 2.51pm, and that no trains were running between Tottenham Hale and Cheshunt.

A Greater Anglia spokeswoman said: "Owing to a number of power failures and CRUSH HOUR: Overcrowding at London Liverpool Street station infrastructure faults caused by Storm Doris, a number of services were cancelled and delayed across our network on Thursday, February 23.

"Services were suspended around 1pm after a tree fell onto the overhead lines and caught fire near Ware, causing one train to be evacuated.

"High winds caused plastic sheeting to become tangled in the overhead wires a number of times throughout the afternoon, which meant some train services were unable to run as scheduled.

"We apologise for the inconvenience caused to passengers. Network Rail engineers worked as quickly as possible to repair the damage."

"Anyone who was affected may be entitled to claim delay repay compensation at www.greateranglia.co.uk/about-us/our-performance/delay-repay."

There were delays until the close of service, with commuters hit by residual delays on Friday morning because the trains were out of place.

There was even more disruption between 10.30am and noon on Friday because of a fallen tree between Harlow Town and Roydon.

THANKED: Margaret and David Cox

Giving up parenting – 60 children and 31 years later

A HARLOW couple have retired from fostering after providing a home to 60 children over a period of 31 years.

Margaret and David Cox first became foster carers for Essex County Council in 1986 and encourage others to do the same.

Mrs Cox, 66, a former mental health nurse at Princess Alexandra Hospital, said: "Fostering is such a wonderful thing to do. You're helping change the lives of vulnerable children and you get so much out of it."

The couple have had a variety of short- and long-term placements during 31 years as foster carers, offering care and support to young people in need.

Foster

They have two children of their own and had originally intended to adopt before being persuaded to foster instead.

Mr Cox, 70, a former Transport for London ticket officer, believes the most rewarding thing is seeing how lives of children change.

He said: "The children you care for all have different issues and backgrounds, but you gradually build up a picture of what is required and it becomes easier. We've got a number of the young people who come back to see us on a regular basis, which is really nice."

"One of them has got her own children now and brings them so it's like being extended grandparents, one of them is at college and will be going to university soon."

Police warn drivers about horses and pigs on loose

Concern about animals kept on town's common causing a hazard

PROBLEM: Horses seized in Harlow by Essex Police

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

CONCERNS have been raised about wildlife causing a hazard on Harlow roads.

Horses, ponies and even pigs have been escaping from fields and common land, prompting the RSPCA to assure residents about their wellbeing.

Earlier this month sergeant Greg Jurkiewicz, of Essex Police, tweeted: "Watch out drivers. Reports of a loose pig running on Third Avenue, Harlow."

A week later Harlow PCSO Laura Cartwright tweeted: "Some of Harlow's loose horses were seized today."

"They pose a danger to road users. Six down, many more to go. Fabulous team work from all involved."

The RSPCA is aware of the problem and said the issue was concentrated around Harlow Common.

A spokesman from the charity said: "The RSPCA shares concerns about the horses kept on Harlow Common and has for many years worked with other welfare charities, the police and the council to ensure their welfare."

"We want to reassure those who care about the horses that we monitor their welfare on a regular and almost daily basis to ensure they are OK."

"Several horses over the years have been removed by the police and placed into our care."

Tethered

"There are a large number of horses who are kept tethered on the common. While the RSPCA has serious concerns about tethering it is not against the law and we can only enforce guidelines on tethering such as pregnant mares, or those with foals at foot, which we regularly do."

He continued: "We are a welfare charity, and can only act within the law and cannot remove animals who have an owner."

"It is only the police who can remove animals, when a vet has said there is evidence of suffering, and place them into our care."

■ Anyone with specific concerns should call the RSPCA on 0300 123 8018.

Discovery of poo in swimming pool cuts short family trip out

A DIRTY discovery ruined a swimming trip for a family when they found a poo at the bottom of a swimming pool.

Stuart Eccleston took his wife Samantha and son Archie on their weekly trip to the Harlow Leisurezone on Monday evening.

But he was shocked when his 12-year-old son pointed out what appeared to be human excrement near the bottom of the pool.

"We got in, did a lap and my son said to me 'Dad, there's some poo in the pool'," said the 46-year-old locksmith, who lives in Hoddesdon.

"I actually swam down and touched it because my wife said it might be rust – but I immediately realised what it was."

Mr Eccleston was concerned the incident could lead to health risks, but a spokeswoman for the pool said disinfectant in the water meant this was not the case.

However Mr Eccleston was left fuming by the manager's refusal to refund the cost of his family's trip.

Arrogant

"We got out and I approached the manager," he explained. "We know accidents happen and the pool is clean but he was so arrogant. He said 'I could give you a credit voucher but I won't'."

"We come every week and we'd only been in there for one lap. It could have been a goodwill gesture. He said 'sorry, there's nothing I can do about it'. There was no apology."

A spokeswoman for the Leisurezone said: "Regrettably, as an operator we cannot always prevent young children from using the pool in this way."

"However, as most people will be aware, swimming pool water carries a certain amount of disinfection within it, and this should deal adequately with such an event as this."

"As an operator we also have guidelines in place that are governed by the Pool Water Treatment Advisory Group and after thorough investigations we are satisfied that the matter was dealt with promptly and that the guidelines were adhered to."

WE COULD BENEFIT: Performing arts company Razed Roof could apply for part of the fund to help their youth activities

Anti-racism activists are invited to make stand

ANTI-RACISM campaigners will hold a rally at St Paul's Church in Harlow to take a stand against prejudice.

Harlow Stand Up to Racism, the group organising the rally, is inviting activists from different cultures to share experiences at the meeting at the College Square venue this evening (Thursday, March 2) at 7.30pm.

Demonstration

The rally is in lead up to a national demonstration in major cities on Saturday, March 18 and will feature speeches from trade unionists, faith leaders, students and local politicians.

Scarlet Hellard, one of the event organisers, said: "It should be a really positive event."

"I'm especially pleased about the wide range of speakers we have from different communities and faiths."

"It also gives us a chance to let people know about the national demonstrations."

"We have already arranged a coach from Harlow and we take a big delegation every year."

£160k is up for grabs to help local youth groups

Organisations can apply for grants between £1k and £5k

VOLUNTARY and community organisations which work with young people in Harlow are set to benefit from grants totalling £160,000 over the next two years.

Grants between £1,000 and £5,000 are available from The Youth Social Action Fund for a range of activities that engage young people.

Projects which are supported include employment, disability, bullying and increasing access to sports and the arts. The Big Lottery Fund and the Department of Culture, Media and Sport will be investing £20 million in funding over the next four years to create what is being called an #iwill fund and aims to enable equal opportunities and social action.

The Essex Community Foundation, along with the Office of the Police and Crime Commissioner for Essex, are acting as match funders and will be awarding grants locally on behalf of the #iwill fund.

Paul Hill, head of grants and programmes at ECF, said: "We are delighted to be a part of this nationwide programme which aims to engage young people in learning about their local community, improve their understanding of local issues and help them interact with people of different ages and cultures."

Contact

"We are grateful to the OPCC for providing match funding for this programme in Harlow. We know there are many voluntary organisations working with young people in this area and we would encourage them to contact us as soon as possible."

Jane Gardner, Deputy Police and Crime Commissioner for Essex, added: "We look forward to working with ECF to ensure this funding makes a difference to the lives of young people living in Harlow."

■ Visit: www.essexcommunityfoundation.org.uk or call ECF's grants team on 01245 356018. Applications will be accepted throughout the year and the first grants will be awarded in April.

All projects must benefit young people between the age of ten and 20 and up to age 25 for disabled people.

New cricket pavilion opens

AFTER a ten-year journey and half a million pound investment, Harlow Cricket Club is at last enjoying a new clubhouse.

The team in Chippingfield, Old Harlow, benefited from one of the largest lottery funding grants awarded in Essex last year by Sport England with £500,000 put forward.

Club members knew a replacement to the decades-old building was overdue and the new venue has already proved popular.

Alan Howick, club president, said: "We started building in spring last year and it opened in December."

Since then children's parties, jazz and blues music nights and wedding receptions have been held, as well as the Harlow Architectural Design Awards. But so far, no cricket has been played. An event has been planned for the end of April to celebrate the new venue.

SMART LOOK: the new clubhouse of Harlow Cricket Club

The Sport England grant was a large part of the total lottery funding (£876,247) awarded to Harlow projects last year.

Mr Howick said: "It was a bizarre feeling to see it open. We are delighted, and for a cricket pavilion it is quite an amazing building. It is like switching from a Skoda to a Rolls Royce."

■ BREXIT

The result is still not clear

THE one thing the referendum proved was that we have a dangerously divided nation.

Following on from the lack of information, and indeed the misinformation, before and during the referendum, we have been fed a totally false impression of the results.

First of all over 46.5million of the total population were entitled to vote. Nearly 13m, over a quarter, 27.8 per cent of this eligible population did not vote, and a further 0.08 per cent spoilt their paper.

Another 16.1m, of those who voted just 34.7 per cent of the electorate elected to remain. Finally 17.4m, of those who voted, 37.5 per cent of the total electorate, elected to leave.

This can in no way be described as a clear and overwhelming endorsement to leave. Quite the contrary.

In many constitutional votes a simple majority does not suffice and a 60 per cent majority is required for such changes.

Indeed the Government has since passed a law that in a simple strike ballot the unions have to secure not only a majority but also 40 per cent of all those who are entitled to vote.

Had such a rule been applied to the referendum we would be remaining in the EU, and no doubt the Brexit voters would be fighting for a further referendum themselves.

Democracy is government for the whole people not simply dictatorship by a majority let alone a minority.

The majority may rule but it should do so with the interest of the whole of the nation in mind.

Moreover, it has a responsibility to inform itself and challenge the misinformation, which has characterised this debate so far, and it should seek to promote harmony in diversity.

What is more, to suggest that once a decision is taken it cannot

■ HARLOW

Why not work for the people?

I am writing in reply to Mrs Webb's letter (This town has gone downhill, February 22) and agree that Harlow is dismal and a disgrace to the country.

Harlow Council blame the constituents but we know only too well how Harlow Council like to point the finger of blame and pass the buck.

Just the look of the town is dismal, distressing with the ugly deserted shops and buildings.

Why is it so?

Because the town has been neglected by our council who value high wages for themselves and cut very much needed services for many years and only want to think short term quick fix bodge jobs, which will need further spending and repair later to put right. But hey, the civil servants at Harlow council do not have to pay for it - we do.

And to add insult to injury we have an MP who is as useless as a burst bubble who only seems to pop up for a newspaper photo to allude he is worth the £74,000 plus a year without expenses.

The town would benefit from a group run by members of the public that have no connection and not influenced by friends in the council to sit down and work out how we can turn this town into a place that will truly stand out that people can be proud of.

A town not run by a council who seem to answer to no one that will simply continue to allow Harlow to stay on its downward spiral to total ruin a ghost town and an even more fearful place to live.

Maybe now Harlow has got rid of rip off Kier and own HTS they will be more less likely to subcontract work willy-nilly out at our expense, and the profit HTS make must be made openly public so money does not somehow get lost.

But be transparent so we know all the profit made will go back into Harlow, not their own self-indulgence, but back to the people via no council tax rises and renewing and upgrading public services.

SOUND OUT

Marcus Mumford

SOMETIME in 2014, two years after releasing their record-breaking second album Babel, Mumford & Sons announced they were taking a break.

They'd been hard at work for the best part of five years, had toured the world several times over, won Grammy and Brit awards, and had the accolade of 2012's fastest-selling album under their belts. They deserved a rest.

However, just over a year later, they returned with Wilder Mind, which, like Babel, went to No 1 in both the UK and the US. Then, after another hugely successful round of touring, they once again hinted at taking a break, but...

"We're pretty restless and we've got very short attention spans," says the band's Marcus Mumford, 29. "I think that comes across in our music. Even on stage it's a microcosm of what we're like - we change instrument if we do one thing for too long."

The band have now released a new concert film, documentary and album, Live From South Africa: Dust And Thunder.

It captures their first performance in Pretoria, South Africa, in front of 50,000 ecstatic fans, and follows on from their Johannesburg EP, released last June, recorded in the eponymous city with Senegalese musician Baaba Maal, Cape Town band Beatenberg and Brit-Malawian trio The Very Best. A documentary, We Wrote This Yesterday, is included with the special edition of the Blu Ray/DVD. It was filmed during sessions for

Bob a job: Marcus and Elvis Costello worked on long-lost Dylan lyrics

Marcus says the concert film allows him to get a very different perspective on the band's live performance

Johannesburg, and sees the musicians collaborating.

Hot on the heels of the film's release, the band - Mumford along with Ted Dwane, Ben Lovett and Winston Marshall - have announced three headline shows in the US, will support U2 around Europe and the States, and will very shortly be heading into the studio to record their fourth album.

"We feel really blessed that there are enough people in the world that want to hear us, so we have this vague responsibility to play to them," says Marcus, who was born in California but grew up in south-west London. "We do work hard, but we've got friends with real jobs, and they work a lot harder than we do. When we're on stage, we're as happy as we can be. So we want to keep making albums so we can keep justifying going on tour. "There's no point sitting back when we're enjoying it so much, and we're all young and able to carry on at this pace."

He says the songs for album number four are currently only embryonic, but experiences in Johannesburg, and his own adventures with The New Basement Tapes - a collaboration with artists including Elvis Costello, My Morning Jacket's Jim James and Rhiannon Giddens of Carolina Chocolate Drops on creating songs from a collection of long-lost Bob Dylan lyrics - could well see any new record being Mumford & Sons' most collaborative.

"I don't think we'll get anyone else involved in the writing, because the four of us still have so much to give on that front. We've all done so much playing now, we listen to so much more diverse music. The main thing I've learned is that the studio should be a relaxed place to be. We want to get on with the next album, but saying that, we definitely won't rush it or release anything until it's absolutely as we want it to be."

Marcus says the main aim for the future is to write songs so good that they can retire their biggest crowd-pleasers, Little Lion Man and The Cave, two songs guaranteed to turn even the most sedate of gigs into a hoedown.

"It would be unthinkable to leave some of our songs off a set list, but that's the aim, to write better and better songs."

He doesn't think the band have worked out exactly what the next album should be, whether it will stray further from their roots, as they did with the stadium rock of Wilder Mind, or embrace them.

"We need to think about what makes a Mumford & Sons record, what makes a record unique to us. We've been kicking about a few ideas, but we're yet to come up with any answers."

One thing Marcus knows is that he doesn't want to spend much more time watching footage of the band performing. The flip side of being in control of all their output, to a degree to which other bands would be envious, is that Mumford and co must approve everything.

"It's just so awkward. I really don't like it. But it was nice while putting together the film to watch the other guys getting into the music. Of course, I just see a show from my own perspective, so it was great to see what they were up to, and to see what the crowd were doing further back than the front few rows. There were a lot of people all the way at the back dancing, and that's a very flattering thing."

"But yeah, it's still very awkward watching yourself. And I'd just like to say I'm much thinner than I look on camera too!"

DEAR READER - DAY FEVER

THE first album in four years from Berlin-based South African singer-songwriter Cherrilyn MacNeil is a marked return to form following 2013's disappointing Rivonia.

With Day Fever, however, it seems Dear Reader is thriving. MacNeil and producer John Vanderslice have opted for an entirely analogue recording style, eschewing big effects and recording directly onto tape, and the result is a warm, organic alt-folk album reminiscent of The Beekeeper-era Tori Amos - not only in terms of style and tone, but also in its painfully honest and open lyrics.

CLAP YOUR HANDS SAY YEAH - THE TOURIST

RECORDED in just a week, Alec Ounsworth's fifth record as Clap Your Hands Say Yeah has an urgency and inventiveness about it, but often veers into being a tad whiny. Fireproof smacks of stilted, video-game soundtracking, while Unfolding Above Celibate Moon (Los Angeles Nursery Rhyme) is as protracted as its title, but once it gets going is full of charm.

The Vanity Of Trying, however, shows some consistency - throughout it is pacy and alluring, buzzing with a clamorous yearning. For indie rock it's got heart, and if on first listen it sounds two dimensional, listen again - it builds.

JENS LEKMAN - LIFE WILL SEE YOU NOW

SWEDEN'S Jens Lekman knows how to play live shows, but it has been difficult for him to match this intensity in the studio. 2012's I Know What Love Isn't employed all the familiar Lekman subjects, but his music's early creativity, playfulness and humour were sadly absent. After wrestling with writer's block his inventiveness only returned after recording and posting a new song online every week for a year. The best of these make up Life Will See You Now.

No longer self-producing, Ewan Pearson gives a renewed sharpness and urgency to the sound, the steel drum-led pop of What's That Perfume That You Wear? being the most addictive pop he's done in years.

THE PIGEON DETECTIVES - BROKEN GLANCES

BROKEN Glances feels like a continuation of 2013's We Met At Sea. It definitely doesn't hark back to the Pigeons' earlier sound and the masterpieces Wait For Me and Emergency, albums loaded with snappy, quick, two-minute tracks. There are glimmers of the Yorkshire band's former sound in Wolves and Lose Control, while Sounding The Alarm is great when it gets going - but it takes far too long to kick in. It's likely that crowds at upcoming gigs will still be waiting to hear the earlier music, rather than the new.

FILM REVIEWS

With Damon Smith

ALSO OUT AT CINEMAS THIS WEEK

VICEROY'S HOUSE (12A)

Lord Louis Mountbatten (Hugh Bonneville) arrives in the swelter of 1947 Delhi at the behest of King George VI to replace Archie Wavell (Simon Williams) as viceroy of India and oversee the transfer of power. Lady Edwina Mountbatten (Gillian Anderson) and daughter Pamela (Lily Travers) also make the journey in the face of shocking reports about sectarian violence. "You're giving a nation back to its people. How bad can it be?" naively remarks young Pamela as they arrive at a gargantuan residence with 340 rooms, which Edwina pithily observes, "makes Buckingham Palace look like a bungalow".

Louis and chief of staff Lord Ismay (Michael Gambon) host the political elite including Jawaharlal Nehru (Tanveer Ghani), Muhammad Ali Jinnah (Denzil Smith) and Mahatma Gandhi (Neeraj Gabi) to debate the way forward and end the bloodshed. In the absence of compromise, barrister Sir Cyril Radcliffe (Simon Callow) arrives to decide geographic borders that will define Pakistan. Meanwhile, romance blossoms between two members of the household - Hindu servant Jeet (Manish Dayal) and Muslim sweetheart Aalia (Huma Qureshi) - who will be torn apart if partition goes ahead.

Viceroy's House apportions sympathy between the central characters, including Lord Mountbatten, who is portrayed as a pawn of a distant British government that intends to implement its crude exit strategy, regardless of the repercussions.

TRESPASS AGAINST US (15)

Colby Cutler (Brendan Gleeson) presides over a fiefdom of caravans and campfires with a clenched rather than an iron fist. He meets dissent with biblical scripture and repeatedly reminds other families to "stay tight" in the face of intimidation from the local constabulary including PC Lovage (Rory Kinnear). Colby's son Chad (Michael Fassbender) cowers in the old man's shadow, but is secretly planning to transplant his wife Kelly (Lyndsey Marshal) and their two children, Tyson (Georgie Smith) and Mini (Kacie Anderson), to a neighbouring site. The move would be Chad's first public act of rebellion and the prodigal son chews nervously on the repercussions of striking out alone. His indecision rankles Kelly and during one of their arguments, she angrily taunts Chad: "If you ain't told your Dad, it don't count for nothing anyway." In order to finance the move, Chad leads nighttime raids on country houses flanked by his joy-riding lieutenants, Kenny (Killian Scott), Norman (Tony Way), Sampson (Kingsley Ben-Adir) and Lester (Gerard Kearns). A close brush with the law during one of these heists brings into focus everything at stake. Trespass Against Us is disjointed, but Fassbender and Gleeson anchor the film with typically muscular performances born of machismo and wounded pride.

Jackman on top form in Wolverine's last stand

Time waits for no mutant in Hugh Jackman's grim and explosively violent swansong as one of the most iconic characters in the X-Men universe.

Set in the year 2029, Logan paints a bleak portrait of super-powered beings on the verge of extinction in a brutal, intolerant world that destroys what it cannot understand.

Director James Mangold turbocharges the muscular action sequences including several bruising skirmishes between the lead character and his pursuers that invariably end with those razor-sharp claws slicing through flesh like a hot knife through butter.

There is plenty of spectacle here, punctuating a moving story of unconventional families in crisis, exemplified by the touching relationship between the title character and his 90-year-old surrogate father, Professor Charles Xavier (Patrick Stewart).

When protegee defies mentor, the script arms Stewart with some crisp and occasionally potty-mouthed rebukes: "I wish I could say you were a good pupil, but the words would choke me!"

REGRET

These outbursts are tinged with regret and a mournful acknowledgement that no one is immune from death's icy grasp - not even a man of science, who can supposedly stop the tick-tock of time with the power of his mind.

World-weary Logan (Jackman) lives under his birth name, James Howlett, in a tumble-down ranch in the desert, where he cares for ailing Professor Xavier (Stewart) aided by albino tracker Caliban (Stephen Merchant).

Logan's abilities as Wolverine are waning - pus oozes from his knuckles when he retracts his Adamantium claws and his body no longer self-heals.

He earns a meagre wage as a chauffeur to pay for medication to alleviate the Professor's violent psychic seizures, which paralyse humans and mutants alike within an ever-expanding radius.

Out of the blue, a nurse called Gabriela (Elizabeth Rodriguez) contacts Logan and offers him 50,000 US dollars to drive a mysterious girl called Laura (Dafne Keen) to "a place up north" called Eden.

The child is a vital link to a new generation of mutants and is being pursued by Transigen head surgeon Dr Zander Rice (Richard E Grant).

Logan hits the road accompanied by Professor Xavier and Laura, with Transigen's thuggish head of security, Donald Pierce (Boyd Holbrook), in hot pursuit.

En route, Logan discovers secrets about his inglorious past and reluctantly takes on the role of the little girl's snarling protector.

Logan strikes a contemplative tone, which sets it apart from the other standalone Wolverine films.

Director Mangold and fellow scriptwriters Scott Frank and Michael Green relish the freedom to explore familiar characters with fresh eyes.

They adopt a leisurely pace, closing one chapter of the X-Men mythology while potentially opening another.

Strong performances from Jackman and Stewart, whose on-screen partnership began 17 years ago, coupled with a sparkling film debut for 11-year-old Keen, ensure a fitting send-off.

The return of Ziggy Stardust... for one night only

ONE of the most famous concerts in rock history is coming to the big screen when Ziggy Stardust And The Spiders From Mars: The Motion Picture is shown at cinemas across the UK on Tuesday, March 7 for one night only.

DA Pennebaker's acclaimed film is being screened along with an interview with the only surviving member of the band, Woody Woodmansey by Mojo magazine's editor-in-chief Phil Alexander. As well as being very entertaining, the interview gives a unique insight into what it was like being in the band when Ziggy mania was at its height as well as the how the creative process worked with David Bowie.

For Bowie fans, it's a great chance to see the star at his peak at the 1973 gig where he announced the band were splitting up... which was news to the band as well as everyone else in the Hammersmith Odeon.

FAMILY HEALTH

Should your family go vegan?

THINK BEING VEGAN INVOLVES NOTHING BUT SEAWEED SMOOTHIES AND EATING YOUR OWN BODYWEIGHT IN SPROUTED SEEDS? THINK AGAIN. DAISY FOX LOOKS INTO WHAT IT REALLY MEANS

WHEN I say I am vegan, the reaction is often the same. "Well, what on earth do you eat? There's no way I could do that."

What do they think I eat? Raw potatoes? Dust?

In reality, vegans avoid all animal products. For example we don't eat meat or fish and we also avoid anything that comes from an animal such as eggs, dairy, honey, silk or wool.

People become vegan for different reasons. I know some who are worried about the environmental impact of farming on a gigantic scale to feed the world's ever-growing population.

Some choose the lifestyle for animal rights reasons. Some are in pursuit of the glowing skin/slim figure/ultra-healthy image that some celebrities attribute to a plant-based diet.

Once you become vegan, you quickly learn which foods you can eat and which to avoid. Some labels state their suitability quite clearly, but there are many more that don't. I've read a lot of ingredient lists over the years.

At first I was surprised at just how many foods are vegan. There are the obvious ones – such as fruit and veg, dry pasta, baked beans, Marmite, ciabatta, rice and chips (cooked in veggie oil).

But dig a little deeper and you'll find a whole range of foods that are 'accidentally vegan' – ie. by pure coincidence rather than design – such as Bourbon biscuits and peanut butter.

Looking online is a good way to find out and lists are updated regularly.

Identifying vegan foods has become easier lately due to the wider range of Free From products available as supermarkets scramble for the custom of those with different dietary requirements.

I cook a lot of dishes from scratch – which is by far the best way to ensure you get the nutrients you need – but there are vegan burgers, sausages, bacon and even fishless fingers on offer for nights when we are in a rush.

Being vegan doesn't always mean you are the picture of health – a whole host of junk foods are vegan – but it does mean that you are more aware of the body's nutritional needs.

You need to find purely plant-based sources of protein, vitamins and all the essential nutrients in the right quantities that your body needs to function normally. And find these in foods that all the family will enjoy.

So what should parents be mindful of when choosing a wholly plant-based diet for themselves and their children?

Dr Alexandra Phelan, our Family Health GP columnist, advises: "Parents feeding their children a vegan diet should take steps to ensure they are consuming the full range of nutrients essential for healthy growth and development."

"The Department of Health recommends that all children

Marmite and Bourbon biscuits are vegan-friendly

from the age of six months to five years, whether vegan or not, be given a daily supplement containing vitamins A, C and D.

"Nut and seed butters, lentils and beans are alternative sources of the protein that children need to support growth. Bananas, avocados, hummus and nut butters are good sources of energy."

"Bread, beans, lentils, dark green vegetables, dried apricots and figs will provide the iron that is required for healthy blood and cognitive development."

"In addition, foods rich in vitamin C, including fresh fruit and vegetables, help the body to absorb iron. Vegan diets can also be lacking in calcium, which promotes healthy bones, and Vitamin B12, which is important for the brain and nervous system."

"Substitutes can be found in certain brands and varieties of flour, cereal and plant or nut milk. "Flaxseed, linseed, rapeseed and walnut oils all contain omega-3 fatty acids, which are often lacking in a vegan diet."

"A balanced and varied diet without too much fat or sugar is beneficial for all children, whether they are vegan or not."

According to the Vegan Society: "Veganism is a way of living which seeks to exclude, as far as is possible and practicable, all forms of exploitation of, and cruelty to, animals for food, clothing or any other purpose."

Having a vegan family with a young child I would certainly agree with 'as far as is possible and practicable'.

Some argue that getting all the nutrients your body requires from a vegan diet is easier for adults than children as adults are happy to eat a wider range of foods.

It can be no mean feat to make sure a picky toddler gets all the nutrients he or she needs to be healthy, whatever their diet!

My son, John, has been vegetarian since birth and, as his tastes change and grow, he is leaning more towards veganism like his mum and dad.

He is full of energy and vitality and likes his food so much he'd sell his granny for a fishless finger, so we must be doing something right.

The vegan diet seems to be slowly entering the mainstream and there is a lot of support out there for people who wish to know more.

This year, a record number of people signed up for Veganuary (pronounced vee-gan-u-ary), a global charity campaign that encourages people to try vegan for the month of January.

"Veganism is one of the most effective choices a person can make to reduce the suffering of animals, help the planet and improve personal health," says Clea Grady, marketing manager.

"As a charity, Veganuary is dedicated to changing public attitudes, while providing all the information and practical support required to make the transition to veganism as easy and enjoyable as possible."

"Veganuary has had an incredible degree of success in a very short time and is changing lives all over the world."

CARDIOVASCULAR disease (CVD) costs the UK £19bn a year – 46% in healthcare costs, 34% from lost productivity and 20% in family carers. So, what is it?

CVD, is a medical term for conditions which affect the blood vessels and heart.

The four main types are:

■ Aortic disease: Can cause weakening, tearing and life-threatening bleeding in the main blood vessel in the body.

■ Coronary heart disease (CHD): Occurs when blood flow to the heart is reduced, increasing strain on the heart and leading to angina, heart attacks and heart failure. CHD is the biggest killer in the UK, causing 73,000 deaths each year.

■ Peripheral arterial disease: Caused by narrowing or blockages in the arteries to the limbs, usually the legs. It causes pain when walking, numbness, weakness, localised hair loss and open sores (ulcers) on the legs and feet.

■ Stroke: This happens when the blood supply to part of the brain is cut off. This will cause brain damage, or death. A transient ischaemic attack (TIA) – or 'mini-stroke' – is similar to a stroke, but the blood supply to the brain is only partially or temporarily cut off.

THE CAUSES

THERE are lots of risk factors that can increase your chance of developing CVD, and the more you have the greater your chances of developing it. These include:

- High cholesterol
- Diabetes
- A high-fat and sugar diet
- Drinking too much alcohol
- Ethnicity: People of African, Caribbean and South Asian descent have a higher incidence of CVD.
- Family history: You are at greater risk of CVD if your brother/father was diagnosed before 55 or your mother/sister before 65.
- Gender: Men have a higher chance of developing CVD at an earlier age.
- Hypertension
- Smoking
- Being overweight or obese

CAN WE BEAT CVD?

CVD isn't curable, but it can be managed through lifestyle changes and medication.

It can also be preventable, and the best way is to keep yourself healthy. So if you're a smoker, quit; eat healthily; and cut down on the amount of alcohol you drink.

Another factor for CVD is how much you move. Adults should aim for 150 minutes of moderate-intensity aerobic activity a week.

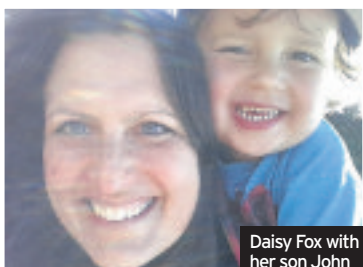

Once you reach 40, you'll be invited for an NHS health check every five years with your GP. This involves assessing your personal CVD risk.

If you have a high risk of developing CVD, your GP may prescribe medication such as statins to lower cholesterol and aspirin.

FOOD & DRINK

Can we cook it? Yes vegan

If you think vegan cooking isn't for you, Sam Murphy's gorgeous debut cookbook might make you reconsider. The blogger-turned-author talks to KEELEY BOLGER about putting her eating disorder behind her and becoming an enthusiastic foodie

INGREDIENTS:

For the sweet
chilli sauce:

1-2tsp hot sauce or chilli paste
2tbsp reduced-salt
tomato puree
2-3tbsp maple syrup
1tsp garlic powder
1tsp onion powder
½tsp salt
Water to thin, if necessary

For the cheesy mustard
mayo:

1tsp Dijon mustard
1tsp tahini
1tbsp maple syrup
2tsp nutritional yeast
1tsp onion powder
3-4tbsp hot water (to reach your desired consistency)
¼tsp salt

For the hot dogs:

2-3 vegan sausages
½ red onion, sliced
1-2tbsp oil, for frying
2-3 hot dog buns
Salt and pepper, to taste
Sesame seeds

METHOD:

1. Prepare the sauces
by mixing each
separately in a bowl
and storing in sealable plastic bags. Set aside.
2. In a large frying pan,
fry the vegan sausages
and red onion in a little

oil until the sausages
are browned and crispy
on all sides and the onions are crispy.

3. Warm the buns in the oven or microwave.

4. To assemble the hot dogs, cut a slice down
the centre of the hot dog bun with a bread
knife (ensure you do not cut all the way through). To apply the sauces, simply slice a small corner off the plastic bags with scissors and squeeze as you would with a piping bag.

5. Spread a thin layer of sweet chilli sauce
inside the bun and
then insert the vegan
sausage. Sprinkle with sesame seeds. Top with onion, salt and pepper and finish with a drizzle of both the sweet chilli sauce and cheesy mustard mayo.

Blogger Sam Murphy has changed her eating habits and hopes to tempt you to do the same with her new book

N a tug-of-war relationship with food and fitness for many years, blogger Sam Murphy is the first to admit her initial foray into veganism wasn't healthy.

The 24-year-old, from New Zealand, had anorexia as a teenager, and, initially, switching to veganism proved another means of controlling her eating and introducing new restrictions.

"I was raw vegan for a while, and I was so obsessed with eating only raw foods in their natural state," explains Sam.

"I can see how easy it is to slip into that, because essentially it's addictive, you become obsessed with it. It's a control thing.

"If you've got something in your life that you feel a bit out of control with, a lot of us will turn to food and control that. I know I do."

After moving to

Melbourne, where she still lives and works in a vegan cafe, Sam slowly began to change her habits and rebuild a healthier relationship with nourishing her body, reintroducing the full gamut of vegan-friendly foods (and actually cooking them), opening up about her experiences in her blog (sobeautifullyreal.com) and, eventually, shaking off her staunchly-held views of 'good' and 'bad' foods.

"Having spent so many years having a very strict food rule list, I still catch myself out having those pre-conceived ideas about what is good and bad," she admits. "It really restricts you creatively, but it also restricts your enjoyment for food. The challenge for me and for others is to break down barriers and just enjoy food as food, and obviously the important thing is keeping it within the realm of being dairy-free and cruelty-free."

"I don't see any reason why you should have to label something good or bad; it should just be real food."

Although she still has bad days, reflecting on her recovery, Sam says: "I got to a point where my survival instincts kicked in. Something clicks, and you realise you definitely don't want to live your life that way, and it's that drive to keep striving for more but also to be really patient and really forgiving and loving towards yourself, and to know that you're going to have ups and downs."

"As soon as I removed the expectation that recovery was going to be this consistent uphill on a progressive scale, it relaxed me a little bit more," she adds. "I'm able to deal with those moments that aren't so great, which I still have - I'm human."

Her debut cookbook, Beautifully Real Food - a gorgeous, colourful collection of mouthwatering vegan dishes - is clearly the work of somebody who now celebrates the joy of food.

She's keen not to preach about veganism though, especially since, as a former meat-eater, she recalls finding the concept very alien.

"I thought it was the weirdest thing in the world. I thought, 'What the hell do those people eat? It's like eating grass!'" she says with a laugh.

"It's different. People are very set in their ways and I was too, and I suppose it's more about educating, just trying it out. I don't expect everyone in the world to go vegan, but if they could just try a meal that is vegan, possibly not knowing that it is vegan first, that would be ideal, so they go in with a very open mind."

"The more people we can get on board, the better," says Sam. "I try not to push my views on people; I just welcome them in: 'Hey, I'll cook you some food and see if you like it!'"

Tempted to see if you'd like it? Here are three recipes from Beautifully Real Food to try at home...

■ Beautifully Real Food: Guilt-Free, Meat-Free Recipes To Indulge In by Sam Murphy (Blink Publishing, £16.99)

In the aftermath of Storm Doris I watched a clip of Calamity Jane aka Doris Day singing The Windy City. I turned to Doris (not the stormy one) to bring comfort and warmth to an otherwise horrid day. We also had pie for tea which was a double comfort and very timely for this weekly missive, as British Pie Week begins on Monday (March 6-March 12).

I'm still under the gaze of the Diet Police, so our pie was my lifestyle-friendly version of cottage pie but I smothered its crispy peaks of oven-baked scrunched potato in brown sauce and had a couple of tastings of red wine alongside. I don't know what the Diet Police would have thought of that but hey ho.

I tasted these two reds with my pie.

RAISE

WITH JANE CLARE

Dourthe Réserve 2014, Montagne St Emilion (£11.49, Waitrose, 12.5% abv) I'm not sure what the winemakers of this delightful Bordeaux would say if they knew this wine bottle sat next to a brown sauce bottle, but what is wine if not to be enjoyed and fit seamlessly into your life. It is a blend of classic Bordeaux grapes, merlot and cabernet sauvignon, with soft merlot taking the main share at 80%. The aromas are a mix of blackberries, red fruits and spice, with a dangle of dry wood; and to taste the spice and fruit combined perfectly with my black-pepper laden mash - not forgetting the sauce - and a dash of acidity heightened the flavours.

Corbières Languedoc-Roussillon, 2015 (£5.49, Lidl, 13% abv) This deep red wine is one of Lidl's current Wine Cellar Collection which is in stores until March 30. It has a nose of ripe red fruits, with just a hint of herbs, to taste, it has an edge of acidity, a touch of minerality and a huddle of red fruit flavours.

If you fancy experimenting with some pie pairings yourself, here are some thoughts:
Cheese and onion pie: My favourite pie. With rich cheesy food it's good to have something with cleansing acidity. I made a cheese pie the other week and poured Aldi's The Exquisite Collection Clare Valley Riesling (£6.99, case of six £41.94 from www.aldi.co.uk 13% abv) and its crisp zinginess was a great match.

Fish pie: I'd always think of chardonnay with fish, not any old chardonnay but a Chablis. These wines are from Burgundy where the vines grow deep down into fossilised seabeds. So you can see the symmetry there! A good one to look out for is award-winning Wm Morrison Chablis Premier Cru (£15, Morrison's, 13% abv)

Apple pie. The trick to sweet food is to pair it with a wine which is sweeter than the sweet thing you're eating. A choice could be sparkling moscato, but for me, it is dessert wine all the way. If your pie is unctuous, caramelised and sticky, like a tarte tatin, half a bottle of Samos Anthemis 2009 (£7.50, www.thewinesociety.com 15% abv) would be an indulgent treat with lots of gooey honey and orange aromas to match.

YOU SNOOZE, YOU WIN

Forget eating clean, sleeping clean is the latest trend.

LISA HAYNES has all you need for your slumber party

A good night's sleep may be even more important than diet if you want to look your best

DON'T worry if you've failed on the clean eating front; there's a new buzzword for 2017 that doesn't involve chomping on any raw veg...

Step forward 'clean sleeping'. It has nothing to do with how often you wash your duvet, but everything to do with pure, unadulterated slumber. Another Gwyneth Paltrow 'Goop-ism', the actress-turned-lifestyle-guru attributes her A-list glow to a clean-sleeping regime: "I believe it should be your first priority – even before you think about your diet," she says in her new book, Goop Clean Beauty in which she recommends getting between seven and ten hours a night. With National Bed Month (yes, it's a thing) approaching, there's never been a better time to super-charge your beauty sleep...

PRE-DUVET RITUALS

PROBLEM: CAN'T SLEEP

WE'RE now getting less sleep than ever, according to research.

Three-quarters of Brits (74%) sleep less than seven hours per night, while 12% snooze for less than five hours – compared to 7% in 2013, according to The Sleep Council's Great British Bedtime Report.

"If you're not sleeping, you'll find your stress hormone levels will go up," says Dr Nish Joshi, holistic guru and founder of the Joshi Clinic.

"Avoid caffeine and wine at night, sleep in a well-ventilated room, and make sure your bed and pillow are comfortable. I recommend taking chamomile about half an hour before bedtime, for a restful night."

RISE AND SHINE

PROBLEM: CAN'T WAKE UP

WOKEN up feeling less than refreshed? It's possible your alarm's interrupted a natural sleep cycle, resulting in that groggy feeling and telltale eye bags. Thankfully, you can fake sleep with cheat products.

"Reduce puffy eyes by massaging a gentle, healing eye cream in the direction of your lymphatic drainage, moving under the eyes towards the temples," advises Nuriss skincare expert, Dr Anita Sturham.

"Skincare with antioxidants, such as vitamins C, B and E, will help boost and repair tired-looking skin."

THE NIGHT SHIFT

PROBLEM: WON'T SLEEP

IF insomnia's not an issue, but there simply aren't enough hours in the day for decent duvet time, your skin could be suffering. Sleep is vital for skin, as it's when cells go into repair mode – creating new ones and removing toxins.

"Lack of sleep can lead to signs of ageing," explains Susan Harmsworth, skincare expert and ESPA founder. "Skin research shows cell regeneration is highest between 12am and 1am, while skin exfoliation and blood flow is increased between 12am and 4am. This is why night-time products are so beneficial."

Eco house that Jane's not fond of any more

Very few people can claim to have had five different jobs and a career that's spanned nearly 60 years. That's what actress, writer, political activist, fitness guru and fashion model Jane Fonda has done since she made her acting debut on stage in 1960, a job she continues today as one of the lead characters in the Netflix series Grace and Frankie.

Her other work is hard to fit into this space, but let's try. She's a two-time Oscar winner, a former Vogue cover model, dance teacher, Hollywood and Broadway actress, anti-war protestor, campaigner against violence to women and has sold more than 17 million fitness videos.

Her marriages have been less successful. She has tied the knot and divorced three times and until recently was going out with record producer Richard Perry, with whom she bought this house in 2012.

It's in the Trousdale Estates area of Beverly Hills, an upmarket suburb of Los Angeles. Fonda, who's a keen environmentalist, liked the property's green credentials including photovoltaic electric panels, a solar-heated pool, thermal glass double-glazed UV windows and bamboo floors.

Contemporary in design, the 7,100-square-foot property includes a glass elevator and glass walls for residents to enjoy the extraordinary local ocean views. Other features include living and dining rooms, pantry, bar, office, chef's kitchen, a terrace and Mediterranean garden.

The property is for sale with Coldwell Banker Previews International for $12.995 million.

Ideal for the narrow minded? Live like a guest of Halycon hotel

THERE'S only a slim chance most people in the UK could afford this two-bedroom house, but for anyone buying it, that would be the point.

Noel Lodge has everything you might expect of a starter home including access to a communal garden, two bathrooms and a kitchen diner. But this property is just eight-foot-wide or, as agent Savills points out, just wide enough to fit a cart and horses through.

And that's no coincidence. When the two properties either side of it were built for a school in 1859 that is what Noel Lodge was; the access passageway for horse-drawn delivery vehicles bringing provisions to the rear of the establishment.

The school closed in 1917 and the passageway was converted into a three-storey home that is an ingenious piece of space-saving design.

On the ground floor there's a kitchen diner while on the first floor is the first bedroom, which the current owners use as a lounge, plus an en-suite bedroom on the second floor. The property has a total area of 52 sq. m or 560sq. ft.

"This completely unique and charming property is perfectly formed, with every square foot of space cleverly maximised. It offers buyers both a blend of original character and modern touches, and the accommodation has been laid out very creatively with a degree of flexibility too," says Matthew Gilbert of Savills.

The property is in Ealing, West London and is on the market for £595,000. More details from Savills on 020 8018 7100.

HAVE you been watching ITV's recent historical hotel drama The Halycon set during the 1940s and featuring the lives of its glamorous guests and staff?

It's been compared to Downton Abbey and stars Kara Tointon, Beverley Knight and Olivia Williams and was watched by 7.28 million people during its first episode.

The fictitious hotel was set in London's Lincoln's Inn Fields area although the filming took place in Liverpool, Manchester, Dublin and London, where the hotel interior scenes were shot in the Land Registry's former headquarters.

Fans of the show may remember one of the episodes in which the characters endure the full horror of London's wartime Blitz bombing raids.

These scenes were filmed in the Lincoln's Inn Fields area in central London because, luckily for the producers, a site had recently been cleared to make way for a new block of luxury flats.

This made for a suitably desolate landscape to film on, although the properties that will eventually be completed on the site will be anything but bombed-out.

The Lincoln Square development, being built by developer Lodha UK, will include luxury apartments from one bedroom to four bedrooms. Prices start at £900,000.

Residents will live very pampered lives compared to their wartime counterparts. The development is to include a private club and library, cinema, pool, gym, private dining room and a billiard room.

More information from joint agents Knight Frank and CBRE on 020 7004 0910 or visit www.lincolnsquare.co.uk.

Brown is set to be the colour of the season. Combine with different shades of green for a stylish finish. Image from The Baked Tile Company

Wood on walls is going to be huge; but don't stress about finding the perfect plank. Porcelain tiles with wood-effect patterns do the job and are easy to maintain. These are from the Courcheval range from The Baked Tile Company, www.bakedtiles.co.uk

Combine two of this seasons hottest looks – brass and lighting – for a truly breathtaking finish

SPRING forward

With just a few weeks until the clocks go forward, Lesley Taylor gives her insight into the looks that will be big this spring

With the days getting longer and bursts of sunlight appearing more often, it feels as though winter may finally be drawing to a close. Fresh starts abound; and with the season of spring often the most exciting of all in the interior design realm, 2017 looks set to be no different.

But first a quick word of warning: there are some stunning trends heading our way, but go with your instinct. Don't redecorate simply to ensure your home is 'on-trend'; instead pick and choose the rooms that need the most attention and go from there.

If you go into the woods...

Wood panelling is going to be well and truly revived this spring – but this trend is as far from those deep, dark, timber clad drawing rooms of old as you can get. Instead, these wood panels will be in tile form, featuring all colours and every grain texture – from light grey to deep orange hues.

Because of the versatility and durability of porcelain tiles, onto which these patterns will be printed, wood panels will be seen everywhere from the kitchen, to the bathroom and beyond.

Metal rocks

Copper – it was good while it lasted but this super shiny material should be left in 2016, as this year we'll be moving from high sheen to materials that feature more texture. The depth of brass will work wonderfully against smooth surfaces, like marble – a current favourite that shows no sign of falling out of fashion anytime soon.

Cosy feels

The mixing and matching of striking patterns in textures, such as on throws and pillows, will be seen everywhere from the bedroom to the lounge. This design direction has been developing for some time, and it follows a relaxation from strictly controlled layouts and interiors, to more informal, welcoming and comforting homes. Along the same track, will be quilted effect items, think cosy headboards, cushioned couches and statement armchairs.

Brown is the new black

Rich hazelnut browns will be the order of a spring day, dramatically contrasting against the pale woods and tan leathers of 2016 just gone by. You may not feel overly excited by the idea of a colour palette formed from browns, but remember – the vivid greenery trend will be here all year through making for a formidable partner when coupled with a deep, contrasting brown. Popular textures to team with hazelnut shades will be smoky oak furniture and chocolate leather fabrics.

Light show

Lighting has been a key interior design focus for a number of years, and spring 2017 will bring bigger, bolder and more exciting lighting designs to literally every corner of the home. Re-imagine your lighting as an accessory for the home – artistic centre-pieces that should make a statement. Designs that have already caught our attention include retro-inspired spheres, tube floor lamps and minimalist brass rectangular light shades.

Handcrafted

It seems that many industries are undergoing a handmade, artisan revolution – everything from beer to clothing lines. Spring 2017 will be the turn for the interior design industry – with handcrafted furniture created by masters of their trade. Finally, it is time to move away from mass-produced products and opt for genuine originality.

Saying it with flowers

Nature is an often seen trend for the spring season, and this year it will be flowers that take centre stage. This trend will be a versatile one – from fresh daffodil clippings in a vase, to the subtle floral patterns on your bone china. For walls, opt for pretty, pale pastels – an approach that can allow you to opt for a large, oversized flower pattern.

Safe to say that the key interior design trends for spring 2017 are representing quite the change from the 12 months previous.

■ Lesley Taylor is the author of 10 interior design books and has appeared on a range of network TV shows, including This Morning, giving inspirational advice on home styling. She lives in Wales where she is the Founder and Design Director of luxury interiors lifestyle store Taylor's Etc.

TOPTIPS

Lesley's top tips for embracing spring trends...

- Don't undertake unnecessary jobs just to be in vogue
- But if you do have a space you would love to give a spring makeover, dive in!
- Try adding the odd 'on-trend' accessory to rooms you don't want to re-do
- Combine browns and greens for a look that will last seasons
- For an ambitious change rethink your home's lighting scheme

GARDENS

GREEN FINGERS

Sow early veg in the greenhouse

IF YOU want to steal a march on summer, start sowing some delicious crops in your soil border in your greenhouse now and you should be harvesting them long before some of your neighbours. You shouldn't go far wrong if you sow produce which is going to remain under cover throughout its life. Vegetables such as French beans, carrots and baby beetroot are great for this and you'll be harvesting them much earlier than you would outside. Check on the seed packet that you have a greenhouse variety. With climbing beans, sow two bean seeds per pot and place them on greenhouse staging in a frost-free greenhouse. When they have filled their pots with roots, plant them 20cm apart in the greenhouse border enriched with organic matter and put in a stake between each plant. Make sure you save space for later crops such as tomatoes, which can be planted in late April or May. Baby root vegetables and salad crops including radishes, spinach and lettuce, can also be sown thinly in the greenhouse border.

Jobs for you to do this week

- Harden off autumn-sown cauliflowers which have been overwintered in frames
- Regularly check late potatoes you have in store. As sprouts appear, rub them out
- In mild, dry conditions, plant out polyanthus
- Tidy up pansies and violas in hanging baskets and containers as they come into life for spring
- Top dress permanent plantings in tubs
- Clean watering cans, seed trays and pots for the season ahead
- Prick out seedlings in the greenhouse and transfer to larger pots
- Continue to order plug plants or pick them up at garden centres
- Protect strawberries with horticultural fleece
- Keep an eye on blackberries, taking care to tie in new growth as it occurs
- Prune hydrangeas, removing the old flowering heads which protected the plant against frost over the winter
- Sow summer spinach, which should be ready to harvest in May

SETTING THE TONE: Blue phloxes provide a blanket of beautiful colour with blues and purples provide restful shades in a garden scheme

How to colour your mood

Award-winning garden designer Tom Massey tells Hannah Stephenson how colour in the garden can alter your mood, ease negative emotions and lift spirits

A spiral of colour is the theme top designer Tom Massey has taken on in his latest show garden which displays the way gardens can enhance your mood and help your wellbeing.

Research shows the therapeutic value and feeling of wellbeing that people get from gardening, according to Thrive, the charity that uses gardening to help people living with disabilities or ill health, or are vulnerable or isolated. But colour can also make an impact.

Massey, 31, was inspired by zen gardens and Japanese designs to come up with his Perennial Sanctuary Garden – to be shown at the RHS Hampton Court Flower Show in July – and has done much research on how the colour and form of plants can change your mood.

At the outer edge of his showpiece, the vibrant red colours represent the inner chaos that can come from being at crisis point. As the visitor takes the journey into the garden following a winding gravel path, sounds from outside the garden fade.

The planting becomes taller and more immersive and the colour scheme moves through stimulating yellows and oranges to more restful purples, blues and finally, pure green.

Towards the middle of the design the planting is simplified, leading to a calm sanctuary at the centre of the garden. Here the planting changes to a single species of towering bamboo that screens the outside world, creating a safe haven and place for peaceful reflection, hidden from view.

But you don't have to create a show garden to generate a positive atmosphere in your outside space. The use of a particular palette to generate a mood can be replicated in many gardens, Massey explains.

"Red is a very stimulating colour – it's eye-catching, it can mean passion, danger and warning, but ultimately it's an exciting colour," says Massey, who uses Sanguisorba 'Tanna', Crocosmia 'Hellfire' and Panicum virgatum 'shenandoah' to energise and uplift in his own show garden. "Red comes to the fore if you want a vibrant bed."

Orange hues spark enthusiasm, fascination, happiness and creativity, combining the energy of red and the happiness of yellow. If you prefer an orange palette, you might try Achillea millefolium 'Terracotta' and Kniphofia uvaria 'Nobilis'.

Yellow is the colour of sunshine, associated with joy, happiness and intellect and produces a warming effect, arousing cheerfulness and stimulating mental activity, says Massey. It's an optimistic, positive colour and plants in this band include Helianthus annuus and Inula helenium.

Purple is associated with wisdom and dignity. Plants in this band include Veronicastrum virginicum 'Fascination' and Miscanthus 'Purpurascens'. Lilac and lavender shades also have a restful quality.

Blue is often associated with depth and stability, symbolising trust, loyalty, wisdom, confidence and calm. Plants in this band include Panicum virgatum 'Heavy Metal' and Phlox 'Blue Paradise'.

Bright colours tend to look more vibrant in sunny settings, while blue and green palettes can flourish in semi-shaded areas, creating a cool, calm atmosphere.

At the centre of Massey's garden, is the screen of towering bamboo. The colour palette is pure green, the colour of nature, representing growth, harmony, freshness, stability and endurance. Green has healing power, it is the most restful colour for the human eye and it has strong emotional correspondence with safety and sanctuary.

"Different forms and textures can be visually exciting and stimulating, but if you have one single species it can create a calming, restful environment."

■ The Perennial Sanctuary Garden will be shown at the RHS Hampton Court Flower Show from July 3-9.

GET HELP TO BUY YOUR PERFECT NEW HOME AT EDGE WITH JUST 5% DEPOSIT

EDGE IS A COLLECTION OF BRAND NEW HOMES IN HARLOW CREATED BY THE AWARD-WINNING DEVELOPER LINDEN HOMES.

Its wide selection of houses includes 2 & 4 bedroom homes – all built to Linden Homes' exacting standards and high specification and designed to create, highly contemporary and bespoke residences: internally, the use of space has been thoughtfully and intelligently arranged for modern living.

The 4 bedroom Moore, for example, has large patio doors to the garden, a balcony for the master bedroom – as well as an en suite. The kitchen, dining room and family area are all open plan, which accentuates the sense of light and space. Prices for the detached 4 bedroom Moore start at £464,950 while prices for a 2 bedroom detached Caro home at Edge start at £359,950.

Help to Buy is available on all of the homes at Edge. To take advantage of Help to Buy you need just a 5% deposit: So for a 2 bedroom home priced at £359,950, the deposit would be £17,997.

Under the scheme, you then apply for a Government funded equity loan of up to 20% of the value of your property: this equity loan is interest-free for five years. You then just need a mortgage for the remaining 75%.

Although the majority of people who have taken up the Help to Buy scheme are first time buyers, it has also been popular with buyers who want to move up the property ladder.

Roseanne Bullen is the Sales and Marketing Manager at Linden Homes Eastern: "A large proportion of customers who have used Help to Buy have been first time buyers, but the scheme at Edge is also bringing in a significant number of second steppers and downsizers. Interestingly this reflects the results of some national research carried out by Linden Homes* which found that almost a third of our properties sold across the UK are being sold to existing home owners.

"The Help to Buy scheme is currently proving to be a very important catalyst for people who may have been thinking about moving to a home like this, whether it's their first home or not. Now, thanks to Help to Buy and low mortgage rates, they can go ahead and do it."

The homes at Edge are an especially attractive proposition because, not only are they located in a highly convenient and attractive setting, they are new, energy efficient, manageable, well designed and low maintenance.

In terms of location, Edge offers the best of all worlds. It is within easy reach of excellent transport and commuting links yet is set in a semi-rural living environment.

The development itself has been carefully landscaped to create family-friendly open spaces around the homes and is situated close to open fields and beautiful woodland.

It is also just a short drive to the M11 and M25 and only a 20 minute drive to Stansted airport†. If you need to take the train, nearby Harlow Mill and Harlow stations offer frequent rail services into London Liverpool street.

DYNAMIC NEW HYBRID

By David Ward

Toyota continues to push on down the hybrid-powered route for their new models and currently one in three of all their new cars sold here are now driven by this 'clean' technology. By 2020, Toyota's bosses expect to see it be the totally dominant choice of power for most of their buyers.

The latest to join the fray is the Prius Plug-In Hybrid which is really a niche model and is the second such version (the first plug-in arrived here in 2012), and is naturally largely based on the normal fourth generation Prius which went on sale in the market last summer.

This latest plug-in edition does have two key advantages over the 2012 model it replaces in that it provides the driver with far more enjoyable driving dynamics and it's also more fuel efficient – but potential buyers will still have to ask themselves whether it's worth the extra money at the end of the day.

Even with the government grant of £2,500 towards each cost of a Prius this latest plug-in doesn't come cheap – there are just two versions starting with the Business Edition at £32,395 with the alternative being the Excel trimmed and slightly better equipped at £34,595.

Compare these prices then with the current non-plug-in Prius, which varies between around £24,100 and £28,200, and it's easy to see why Toyota GB expect to sell only 435 of them here this year with just over a half to fleets and the rest to private, retail buyers.

But it's all part of an on-going philosophy by Toyota worldwide to be seen as the major hybrid car maker and as they continue to develop and improve the concept they are certainly producing excellent such cars that are also environmentally friendly and also practical too for motorists.

Plug-in cars are currently a small aspect of this but growing rapidly and they are sold on their pure electric range potential and with their engineers managing able to make the battery component more efficient in this new Prius Plug-In the EV driving range has more than doubled – from around 15 miles to over 30 miles driven totally on electric power.

Coupled with a 1.8-litre 98bhp petrol engine that comes into play alongside the electric motor when needed makes for a total of a 120bhp power train for the car.

There's a choice overall of Normal, Eco and Power driving modes with HV, EV, EV City and Battery Charge Mode power train and whilst initially a new driver sitting behind the wheel of a Prius Plug-In for the first time it will seem a bit daunting and will take some time to adjust their own driving techniques and to become accustomed to the various dials and controls, plus readouts on the dashboard, to know what is actually going on and how best they can economically drive the car.

Switching to and from the modes is dead easy too with simple, straightforward buttons on the dashboard and changing from to another and back again does show how versatile this plug-in can be on a journeys, particularly from in-town, stop-start driving to full power mode out on the motorway.

As for driving this new plug-in there are two notable improvements in my book – the first being how much quieter with less vibration levels there are inside the cabin compared to the previous model which Toyota says is down to better insulation.

The second is the much improved (and welcomed) overall performance of the car out on the open road and although the CVT (automatic) is still far from my favourite transmission this latest version is better and again quieter once on the move.

The CVT still revs high and a bit raucous sounding initially when the driver pushes down hard the accelerator pedal for quicker acceleration but this time around it's noticeably much quieter where the unit uses some torque from the electric motors to cope with such strenuous demands.

Toyota claim overall performance is now better with 0 to 62mph acceleration in 11.2 seconds and a claimed combined fuel consumption of an incredible sounding 283mpg with crucially CO2 emissions of 22g/km.

Thankfully with a 42-litre petrol tank on board it allows the car to be driven quite a long way before the driver needs to find a socket to plug it in.

Talking of plugging-in and charging the battery Toyota engineers confirm that it will take about three hours to be charged up on a normal, household 13 amp socket and any owner with a rapid domestic charger installed at their home the job can be done under two hours.

In terms of outside looks the Prius Plug-In only differs slightly from the non-plug-in model with a slightly changes front and rear end while elsewhere it's much as you were though as the bigger batteries on board do take up more boot space than ever.

This means the actual luggage areas is down from 502 litres (rear seats up) and 1,633 litres (rear seats down) to 360 litres and 1,204 litres respectively

Inside the cabin there's not too much difference with this plug-in over the normal current Prius aside from having more graphics displayed on the dashboard screen to tell the driver instantly how efficient or otherwise the hybrid is being used.

A new innovation on the plug-in model this time is the installation of a solar panel roof which Toyota claims to enable the car to drive around 400 miles of all electric motoring a year persistently in city traffic.

The trouble is that this unique feature is only available on the cheaper of the two models being offered – the Business Edition – simply because the dearer Excel has leather seats as standard and that could spell trouble when generating heat from the solar panels.

Overall though, this niche plug-in model is much improved where it was needed in terms of offering better, electric-powered motoring making it more environmentally friendly and again keeping Toyota well ahead of rivals in the hybrid power stakes.

BEAT THE TAX INCREASE!

DVLA / EVL

Vehicle Excise Duty (VED) goes up on April 1st so order your new Kia today and beat the increase!

The new regulations will mean that, from 1st April, all petrol & diesel cars purchased from new will face a significant increase in their tax demands during their first year of registration, and from the second year onwards a flat rate of £140 a year will apply. On top of this, cars with a list price of over £40,000 (when new) will pay an additional £310 per year for 5 years – however with only one model in the Kia range currently near that price, it's good news for Kia fans!

Remember, these changes to the VED do not affect cars registered before 1st April, so if you want to avoid paying more road tax, now really is the time to buy!

HERE ARE A FEW SMALL EXAMPLES OF HOW MUCH MORE YOU WILL HAVE TO PAY FROM APRIL 1ST ONWARDS:

YOUR STARS WITH

ARIES MARCH 21 - APRIL 20
This week you begin to realise that your current blessings are far more powerful than your past regrets. Even though you have the urge to get in contact with someone from your past, you know it would not be the right thing to do. Congratulations Aries. You've finally turned that important corner. Ring now to hear why it's worth doing training courses this month and next.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 300 65p PER MINUTE

TAURUS APRIL 21 - MAY 21
Your health signs are improving by the day and, if you are one of the many tauruses who have been seriously lacking energy in the last few weeks, then you'll be pleased to hear it. You'll start to see with clarity what and who you need to give up to feel like you again. Mid-week transits see you saying things you shouldn't. Ring now so I can give you verbal guidelines.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 301 65p PER MINUTE

GEMINI MAY 22 - JUNE 21
I know you feel you have not had the support you would have liked. I also see from your chart that you're feeling better off now that someone is out of your life, although they chose to be. They did you a favour and you can do yourself one if you accept those social invites which I see will be coming your way. Ring now to hear why it's worth spending more time with Capricorns this week.

CANCER JUNE 22 - JULY 22
There is the need within you to sort out issues from your past. The problem Cancer, is that you will only be able to get hold of third parties over the coming days which could see you being given the wrong information. New flirtations begin and build up more quickly than you've ever experienced before. Ring now to hear how I see new beginnings in 2017.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 303 65p PER MINUTE

LEO JULY 23 - AUGUST 23
Patience really will be a virtue in the days ahead, as you battle to understand why certain close ones have acted and spoken as they have. Time will reveal the real story, so try not to say things you may end up regretting. There is far more to what is going on in your career than at first meets the eye. All will be revealed by Thursday. Ring now to hear how Saturn blesses financial settlements.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 304 65p PER MINUTE

VIRGO AUGUST 24 - SEPTEMBER 22
A change to the way you think about your day to day life is brought on by the stars and you feel far more at ease with who you are and where you are going with your life. The return of a face you have not seen in a while is sure to stir your emotions and raise many questions. Know what you want before you ask questions this week. Ring now to hear how Mars brings the fun factor.

LIBRA SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 23
There is a really emotional feel to your chart which could see you asking for things you don't really want in the long term. Stop and take a breath my friend, as I see from your stars that you can and will achieve your dreams if you make a priority. News of a birth or pregnancy brings surprise by the end of this week. Ring now to hear why I'm so sure your past and present can mix together well.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 306 65p PER MINUTE

SCORPIO OCTOBER 24 - NOVEMBER 21
There is a really impulsive feel to your chart which could see you saying and doing things which others will be talking about for a long time to come. Decide carefully what you want out of life, then work like crazy to get it this week, as miracles can and will occur with a little more self belief. Ring now to hear why it's worth sticking to family's plans and arrangements.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 307 65p PER MINUTE

SAGITTARIUS NOVEMBER 22 - DECEMBER 20
You work hard and play hard this week, which will of course see you the cause of much speculation. Your element of fire could see you sticking up for those who are not as innocent as they at first seem. Try to listen to both sides of any stories and don't judge without good cause. You may need other's fair minds and opinions yourself soon! Ring now so I can reveal your future.

CAPRICORN DECEMBER 21 - JANUARY 20
Venus gives you the confidence to do things which you would not even have considered at the beginning of the year. You feel ready, willing and able to take on challenges. A great week to try new things and to kick bad habits. Time spent with family and even just talking to them more often over the phone reveals what really occurred over Christmas. Ring now. We have much to discuss.
FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 309 65p PER MINUTE

AQUARIUS JANUARY 21 - FEBRUARY 19
A challenging few days made it hard for you to feel as focused as you'd like to be. Don't worry though, as help is on hand from those who know you well, if you'd let them help you. Any links with further education or learning can only be a good thing. Don't shrink away from challenges as you are more than ready to face anything that comes your way. Ring me for an honest opinion on love affairs.

PISCES FEBRUARY 20 - MARCH 20
A scatty air to your chart could see you losing things you have only just found. Don't worry. This will pass by Wednesday when you will find it easy to see what needs to be done to make your life more structured and enjoyable. Your ruling planet Jupiter makes family more important and you find yourself wanting to contact those you have not seen. Ring now for your week in full.

TEAM EFFORT: Harlow Running club celebrate third place in the Local Cross Country League

Duo claim veterans' titles in cross country league

ROB LOWE and Debbie Barry led the way for Harlow Running Club at the final round of the Local Cross Country League in Bishop's Stortford.

Lowe was first home for Harlow, in 15th place overall, with a time of 30min 25sec, to claim the overall men's V40 winner for his performances across the five races in the series.

Barry came 49th overall, in 43:21, and picked up the overall ladies' V55 trophy. Harlow entered the final race in third place overall, but even with an impressive performance, the gap between winners Bishop's Stortford and second-placed Ware was too big to overcome and they finished up third. There were 35 runners representing Harlow, with many others taking part in other runs across the weekend.

INTERNATIONAL STAR: Mikey Searing has represented Great Britain

Senior Team GB call-up for Searing

HARLOW College student Mikey Searing recently travelled to the Czech Republic to represent Great Britain in the sport of snowboardcross.

Searing, 17, is an elite junior with the British Snowboardcross National Academy, and was selected to compete at the FIS Snowboard Junior World Championships, after winning gold at the English championship in 2015.

He was competing against other snowboarders between the age of 15 and 19 from more than 20 different countries from all over the world. He is currently training in Austria with others from Team GB.

Searing, who studies sports science at Harlow College, said: "I enjoyed competing at the Junior World Championships, the track was fun but technical and it was a great experience to be part of it, now looking forward to my next races."

"I am enjoying training and travelling with the British snowboardcross team and am gaining lots of experience on the international circuit and learning loads."

The 17-year-old was moved up to the seniors' section as they combined the juniors and senior competitors this weekend and the Bishop's Stortford-based star finished 23rd and 27th in Bozi Dar, Czech Republic.

Qualify

The previous week, at the same course, Searing failed to qualify for the junior individual race but in the team event, which is a two-team relay race, he and team-mate Douglas Green came 26th.

Boardcross is a snowboard competition equivalent to motor cross where four to six snowboarders race down a course with banks, kickers, rollers and turns.

Searing was part of a six athlete GB team last weekend, and the team's coach James Foster has spoken highly of the youngster.

He said: "This is Mikey's second season with the British boardercross team, and we are all impressed with his riding ability."

"His mental approach to the sport and all training aspects is also impressive and should stand him in good stead."

Play-offs are still in sight for Hawks

Assistant boss calls for side to be more consistent

HARLOW Town assistant manager Spencer Knight admits his side bounced back well from late disappointment last week to thrash Folkestone Invicta 4-1 away on Saturday.

The Hawks drew 2-2 at home last Tuesday against Folkestone, when two late goals from the visitors earned them a point, after Harlow had been 2-0 up after 87 minutes.

The second fixture in a week between the sides saw Danny Chapman's side go 3-0 up after 44 minutes with goals from Mario Noto, Junior Dadson and Craig Pope. Dadson scored his second of the game just before an Ashley Millar sending off and a Joe Taylor consolation for the home side.

Knight said: "We wanted a reaction. We were obviously disappointed letting in the two goals late on with Folkestone on Tuesday.

"We said to the boys for 87 minutes we bossed that game, and we wanted them to replicate that on Saturday, and fair play to them they did. They totally dominated the game and deserved the win."

Motivated

"You like to think the players are always motivated, but when things like last week happen, you do get that reaction."

"We came out firing and competed in poor conditions, kicking into the wind first half, and we really kicked on from the off. The game was over at half-time."

Harlow sit in seventh place in the Ryman Premier table and are still mathematically in with a chance for a play-off place but

NEVER GIVE UP: Spencer Knight believes Harlow can still reach the play-offs despite other teams' games in hand sides around them have a lot of games in hand.

The Hawks' assistant manager spoke about the chances of the play-offs and the side's priorities until the end of the season.

He added: "The play-offs are a remote possibility, we won't give up on anything until it is mathematically impossible but we are not looking at whether we are going to make the play-offs."

"We have ten games left and we want to win as many as we can."

"We know we are capable of going on a run. What's letting us down is our inconsistency, on our day we have beaten all of the top four but at the same time we have dropped points against all of the bottom four."

"We need to get more consistency, and if we do that next season, we will be able to kick on for those play-offs."

Billericay are next to visit the Harlow Arena and face a tough task as the Hawks have the best home record in the division.

"Billericay have started to spend a lot of money, they will be one of the sides that if we finish above we have done very well," Knight explained. "It will be a great test for us."

"Nobody should come to our place for an easy ride. We need to be in their face and put on another good performance at home, like we have done all season."

"No matter who they are, how much money they are on, or who they think they are, they are not going to get an easy ride."
